교과목 교육목표 (Course Objectives)	This is course zoom class, an online class with zoom The module titled as International Organization is one of the core courses of International Politics. This module also aims to enhance the academic understanding of IOs, as well as the practical application of students' knowledge when they are actually in society. It aims to introduce a variety of organizations of international nature, and examines their implications for world politics. They include intergovernmental organizations, such as UN and IMF, which both aims to provide some stability and prosperity in international society, as well as other non-governmental ones, such as NGOs or even MNCs, whose presence and impact has become increasingly salient and important over time.
교과목개요 (Course Description)	By identifying, dissecting, and examining these organizations both from theoretical and practical perspectives, students are thus able to assess critically the core issues and concerns relating to global governance in which the roles of international organizations prove to be essential and critical. In this course, not only would students have an opportunity in making sense of the governance and role of international organizations in world politics, but they would also have an opportunity to meet those working in the field. For the latter objective, in particular, this course will provide a on-site visit to the relevant organizations, as well as the special lectures of those who are working in the field. By doing so, students' understanding and aptitude in working in the field is going to be enhanced.
